United Church Conference

At the recent United Church Conference in Edmonton, Rev. Dr. Bryce, the Moderator, reviewed the work of the church from coast to coast, also the work in other lands beyond the seas. He pointed out that these are days of extreme testing, calling for sacrifice and faith.

Human life is becoming cheap suffering and slaughter move on a checkered, dictatorship spreads its ruthless power over the masses who are forced along dazed and helpless; there is little light breaking through the gloom.

Into such a world, 1000 years ago came a bright Light, those who found Him and followed were saved by His love, they became the salt of the earth, the light of the world, and so the world was turned again into the ways of God.

Today the church is called, not to entrench but to venture and to suffer, there is no other way for the Kingdom to come to a world groping in blindness, selfishness and hate.

The past year has taken a heavy toll of life from the servants of the church. Apart from the Canadian ministers at home who have laid down their burdens, a number have lost their lives at sea and on the foreign mission fields.

Dr. Breton of Victoria inspired with his spirit of joy and confidence. He told of the splendid type of Christian service being rendered by our church. These times of trial have brought to view remarkable qualities of Christian character and endurance only possible to such lives as have given Christ complete control.

This lost world is not hopeless. We are not here to entrench; we are not here to "Defend the Faith". The mission of the church is to proclaim the Gospel, to cry, "Behold your God" to a sin-sick world. "No man sees anything clearly until he sees God".

An enlightened church is beginning at last to see the sin and folly of denominational differences. The church must live up to the gospel she preaches of Christian brotherhood, of real fellowship and co-operation. Other institutions run the church. Russia sends 600 communists to China while we bring our missionaries home. The world will be converted to something, if not to Christianity, then what? How shall a world catastrophe be avoided by Nazism, by Fascism, by Communism, by Capitalism, or by the Kingdom of God on earth?

The church reaffirms its faith in the Kingdom and seeks to apply the spirit and teaching of Christ to the problems of modern life.

The Curse Of Education

"The best things in life are not given a percentage."

The foregoing is just a small extract from a speech made to a class of graduating Normal School students by Dr. J. S. Thomson, president of the University of Saskatchewan, to give point to a protest which he uttered against the school system of examinations as it exists in Canada and which he addressed to the government and all educational authorities.

It is indeed gratifying to see leaders of education in the Western provinces voicing such a viewpoint on the inadvisable method of categorizing school students—of pigeon-holing them under valuations elicited as a result of the application of a rule-of-thumb system of examinations.

As Dr. Thomson said: "The grading of A's, B's and C's, and this multiplication of initials until students don't know where they are," leaves no little place for all the noble things in life that can never be put in terms of percentage."

While the press report of Dr. Thomson's address did not enumerate those nobler things towards which the student mind should be guided, it is not difficult to enunciate them and they can all be incorporated in the single-term "good citizenship," provided the definition of that phrase is made to include all that it should designate.

Good Citizenship

And good citizenship means much more than interest in government, in political affairs, in neighborhood work and the like. It involves the development of a genuine, unselfish interest in the welfare of others and the will to recognize and place human values above material considerations and the advancement of moral and spiritual welfare.

It is because these things are, and should be, the ultimate goal of the educational system that the personality and character of the teacher should be as rapidly developed as the academic, as the teacher says, "so will the pupil be during the formative years of the child's career. The teacher is destined to implant an unconscious and irremovable mark on the mind of the impressionable youth under his or her care."

The value of the teacher to the children, to the community, and the nation is incalculable. The teacher who is a good example in life, in training or in conduct. A teacher whose strong individuality and mediocre attainments is worth immeasurably more to the future generation than one who is superlatively clever but lacks the attributes which inspire respect and admiration. The teacher who combines both is a jewel indeed and for such, adequate compensation cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

In the tuition of those things which as Dr. Thomson says, cannot be registered in percentages, an ounce of practice is worth a ton of precept, to paraphrase a time-honored saying. The teacher who renders only service to the nobler things of life is not worth his or her salt when the yardstick of reward is the grade or letter which a teacher who is a living example of the aspirations which he or she holds up to the pupils as the sole star of the heavens is a pearl of great price.

While the teacher may have to conform, through regulatory control, to the examination system in greater or less degree, he or she will perform his or her greatest and most valuable work when moulding children into future citizens with ambitions to reach for the highest and best that life can offer, not in material terms, but in the moral and spiritual realms, and this can only be done by the influence of example.

Teacher's Influence

The teacher who plays the game of life on the basis of the highest rules will exert an unconscious influence for good on his or her charges that will never be extinguished throughout life, and fortunate, indeed, is the child whose future destiny is placed in such competent and reliable hands.

Nor will that imploring force die with the passing of the teacher's charge, as it will be passed on from generation of generation. Like the ripples made by the touch of a stone or the impulse surging through the ether from a radio transmitter, the world may say how far it will go or measure the extent of its ultimate effect.

The teachers about to embark on their difficult and highly responsible task of laying the foundation for a better and better nationhood were urged by Dr. Thomson to set before their students the standard of conduct that "attitudes of the mind, the absolute worth of individual human beings, the building of character and the value of citizenship, and pointed out the importance of selflessness with the appropriate comment that "they way to be unhappy is to fall in love with yourself."

Excellent advice which, if it falls on receptive ground, is bound to yield rich dividends to the country in the future.

Yields Another Treasure

Paris Wrecking Crews Find More Gold Coins In House

The old house at 53 Rue Montfard, Paris, where wrecking crews found a $90,000 treasure in gold last year yielded another and richer hidden hoard.

Workmen broke down a new section of wall and brought to light a leather and cloth bag packed with ancient gold pieces. An estimate of the worth of the find was not immediately available, officials said it was greater than $90,000.

The currency found first had been won by Louis Nobile, acting Louis' squarer, his niece, Anna Louise Claude Nivelle, according to the testamentary document found there.

Brain Waves

Specialists Find That Electric Current Flows From The Brain

New light on the human brain, in the form of long, low-voltage waves of direct electric current flowing from the mouth of the brain, was a great discovery last summer by the American Psychiatric Association at San Francisco.

This direct current is positive during consciousness, negative in unconsciousness, and apparently the precursor of death when it has too long continued.

Its discovery amazed the brain specialists for two reasons. The brain gives off the direct current simultaneously with all other currents, and the wave of the direct current goes on for 10 to 30 minutes while the "A.C." pulsates at an average of 10 a second.

A bather has written his will on a briar. It is to be hoped that after the lawyers have had their nibble there will be a few crumbs left for the legatees.

Not Good Publicity

Successes In Canada Not Stressful As Much As Failures

"Canada," said Lord Tweedsmuir to the visiting Scottish friends the other day, "has a public life; too much for the failures and too little for the successes." There is much truth in that remark, states the Ottawa Journal.

The world hears about our Western drought, the problem of our railways, but less much about our solid accomplishments. Perhaps the world does not realize that this small population in half a century has made a nation of nations. Its setting sun has made a good start in the development of rich natural resources, is one of the foremost trading countries on earth. Sometimes in the face of insurmountable difficulties we fail to bear these facts in mind even having ourselves.

The trouble is that our accomplishments go into the blue books, but the failures are in the news. Our successes are not sufficiently stressed abroad. Perhaps it isn't news, but it is a fact of first importance that although an English-speaking people, the Canadian have preserved and developed a British culture, solidly devoted to the British tradition. The progress of agriculture, of industry, of mining may not always be news, as news is news, but that progress has been a vital factor in word history of the past half century.

There isn't much we can do in the way of self-promotion, but we should have to carry on in the news, just as that even in the United States many people still believe Canada a place of perpetual ice and snow inhabited mainly by Eskimos and Mounted Police, but we need have no inferiority complex on that account.

Prime Ministers

Sixteen Ministers In Eleven Prime Ministers In Canada Since Confederation

During the 16 years since confederation there have been 16 Ministers and there have been 11 Prime Ministers in Canada. In the 34 years, up to 1901, there were seven Prime Ministers, and in the 37 since then only four have been added to the list says Canada's Weekly.

The most frequent changes in Premiership came after the death of Sir John Abbott, Sir John Thompson, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Sir Charles Tupper and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Lord Macdonald was leader of the government for about 19 years, the longest period, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier, leader for 15 years, had the shortest, Sir Charles Tupper had only two months and one week. Sir Robert Borden was in office for eight years and 10 months. Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, present head of the government, has been Prime Minister for about 17 years.

All Mr. Macleish's predecessors, except Alexander Mackenzie, were given titles. Sir Charles Tupper received a baronetcy. John Macdonald created a baronet. Hon. Arthur Meighen, W. L. Mackenzie King and R. B. Bennett have remained untitled.

Checking Aliens

Second Land Searching For Aliens Residing in United Kingdom

The special branch of Scotland Yard, co-operating with the Home Office, has launched a thorough check on all foreign residents in the United Kingdom, who are estimated to number around 200,000.

Officers are questioning an average of 50 a day and have found many for whom they were seeking came to England partly for the Coronation, renewed their visas but have remained and have neglected to renew them again.

Immigration officials are also keeping a close watch for alien enterprisers at British ports.

Must Serve Seven Years

Before R.C.M.P. Constables Are Given Power To Marry

Report from western Canada that some Royal Canadian Mounted Police constables are resigning because of new marriage regulations could not be confirmed at Ottawa, although one of the constables said it is possible some are leaving in that way.

After Col. S. T. Wood took command of the force last winter he increased from five to seven years the time a constable must serve before he is given permission to marry. In the first days of the force a man had to serve 12 years before he could marry and this was gradually reduced. Sir James MacBrien, who promoted Wood, reduced it from seven to five years.

The increase back to seven years was made because it was considered the proportion of married men among the constables was too large and affected mobility of the force. It also increased the cost of maintaining the force. When a constable is transferred there is the expense of moving his family. Married men also draw double rations and are given additional pay to cover extra living quarters.

Constables who have been four years in the force when the seven-year regulation came into effect will be granted permission to marry when they reach 12 years.

Admiral from Earl Baldwin

Sees Danger In Britain From Mechanized Road And Thought

Mechanized amusement, mechanized reading and mechanized thought, says a naval officer.

Admiral from Earl Baldwin

The former prime minister, opening a community hall at Wilton, England, declared: "Our English have always been fond of individualism, of individual thoughts of individual minds, and I pray God it may always be so."

Modern transport had increased the influence of the towns on the country. The same films were seen, the same newspapers read, in town and country.

"The danger of that," contended Lord Baldwin, "is getting a kind of standardized, suburban, mechanized and uniform thought, which establishes the improper use of these standards that in many countries has come upon the people a regimentation of thought which we believe is a great danger for the future."

Holidaying the community hall would be a means of recreation and enlightenment, he warned: "Be yourselves of the old English countryside. Be your own people. Be yourselves, think your own thoughts, act as you will; be individual, be independent."

Her Mistake

An Ontario woman, resident of Brockville, Ont., politely declined the offer when a small boy and girl knocked at her door offering tulips for sale. She said she had tulips of her own in the garden. But she had not. When she went into the garden a few minutes later she found they were gone.

The Hague Saw 10,000 Women March In Silent Demonstration

More than 10,000 Netherlands women from all over the country marched in silent procession through The Hague, while delegations were received by the Netherlands Government, the municipality of The Hague, and the World Court in The Hague.

The Hague's peace procession marching in silence, was a moving expression of women's desire for peace and their general abhorrence of war and violence. It was a reply of Netherlands women to a call issued recently by the Central Committee of the Women's Peace Procession to the Netherlands addressed to all women, wives and mothers.

"Let us all then," they said, "on Goodwill Day, give in a silent testimony of our unbroken longing for peace. Join the ranks of those who know that they are members of the world's most peaceful people who in the past year, in Europe as well as in other parts of the world, fell victims to the force of arms."

Women's peace demonstrations were also held in Switzerland, France and Scotland.

Lotion Applied To Skin Of New Jersey Hotel Guests

Sweet potatoe grown near Swedesboro, New Jersey, are being used in some of the nation's larger hotels because of a "beauty treatment" they are subjected to in the local packing houses. After each plant is washed and thoroughly dried, a lotion is applied to the skin to seal the sweet potatoe moisture.

The lotion attains a bright lustre after its application and enhances the potatoe's taste.

CHAPTER XIII.

Fate, in the form of a bus, made up Ernest Bingley's mind for him. It stopped in front of him and he swung about. "What? What is it bound he knew not?" of the compensation of poverty is that adventure is not the exclusive prerogative of the rich.

"Where to, sir?" asked the guard.

"I'm going wherever you're going," answered Ernest. The guard gave him an almighty kick in the tempery ticket, and scuttled away.

At the end of the run Ernest got off. Confronted him was a massive structure, which a bobby informed him, was the Bank of England. Ernest was vastly interested in the exterior of this monument to Mammon, when Sir Peter Tyler, a most substantial and resplendent figure, issued forth.

"Bingley, by Jove!" he exclaimed. "What a bit of luck. Glad to see you."

"How do you do, Sir Peter?" said Ernest.

"Splendidly, thanks. I rather thought you'd be in town to-day."

"You did?" said a surprised Ernest.

"One finds bees where honey is," said Sir Peter, and winked. "Shall we go in?"

"Yours," said Ernest.

A free ride was a free ride, and Sir Peter was Sir Peter.

They entered a limousine like a fast horse.

"Club, Willlets," ordered the financier.

They were ferried through the lobby of the club a door-music rigged out in the dress of a band, and marshalled in Arabian dragons aside.

"They are waiting for you in the private dining room on the third floor, Sir Peter."

"Good," said Sir Peter. Then to Ernest, as though in the air, "You had one friend cannot be with us. Passport trouble, I believe."

This was so much pure Ernest to Ernest.

But he had no chance to ask questions, for things had to happen fast.

Sir Peter steered him into a room where three men were smoking and drinking coffee as if they were holding a wake over the remains of a lioness. They were men of their middle, well-turned-out, important looking men.

They greeted Sir Peter as if he was an old acquaintance.

"Permit me to introduce Mr. Ernest Bingley, from America," said Peter. "He has heard me speak of him, I think. Mr. Bingley, the Dutch, Hendrik Van Tromp—the Dutch group, you know."

Dr. Van Tromp, who looked like a Dutch group, having a figure like a pile of bolsters, made a quasi-militia salute.

"Mr. Miles Silver?"

Mr. Silver, who looked as if he should have been called Mr. Leather for he was tanned as a saddle, and looked as hard as a check-rein, said he was honored.

"And Sir Mark Newsome?"

Sir Mark, whose spike of ebony hair and anthracite eyes suggested a hypnotist, said,

"Most awfully glad to meet you at all, Mr. Bingley."

Ernest made suitable civil sounds, and waited.

The four men, he was aware, were scrutinizing him closely. The thought struck Ernest that this slight community of alienated assumed to ascertain if his being at large constituted a threat to the peace of the kingdom. He crossed his legs and nearly ready to have his knee-jerked tested.

Sir Peter addressed the meeting.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I suggest we cut this short. I've a pressing engagement, and when I tell you that I involved a niblick and a caddie you will see why we should waste no time."

"Then let's get down to it, then," said Dr. Van Tromp.

"And I," said Miles Silver.

"To fly to Biarritz this afternoon myself," said Sir Mark Newsome.

"Let's get down to it, then," said Sir Peter.

Peter thought it rather cool of Ernest to make such a speech in a hurry as they could get away with play; but he said nothing, and decided to adopt a policy of silence and thus avoid any verbal traps they might set for him.

"We all know what we are here for," said Sir Peter.

"And we have a pretty good idea of what Mr. Bingley is here for," said Sir Peter, and his smile, somehow, made Ernest think of a tomcat he had once caught before he had made him, for reasons known to them, a pawn.

The four important looking men were filling up with them when their escort was stopped by a man who burst into the room as if his shirt-tails were on fire.

It was Hubert Punder and to say Mr. Punder was hot is to say that mustard is like chocolate ice cream. Mr. Punder generated heat in every direction.

"Hah!" he snorted. "Hah!"

"Why, Punder!" exclaimed Sir Peter. "Would you do me a favor by breaking into a private meeting and going Hah! at us?"

"Private meeting? Hah! Private awinnde!" bellowed Punder.

"Why, Punder," said Sir Peter, raising his eyebrows.

"I'd like to know what's happened here," Punder said.

"Ask Mr. Bingley."

"I'll do that," said Ernest, turning nervous eyes on Ernest.

"Hah! You closed with those wolves?"

"Hah!" has," said Sir Peter, "and a little less of that wolf talk, if you don't mind."

"Hah! much," growled Punder.

Sir Mark answered for Ernest.

"Five," he said.

"Hah!" It was an outraged "Hah!"

"Hah! Hah! is all you have to say, we adjourn the meeting?" said Sir Peter.

"No, you won't," said Punder.

"I'll do that," said Sir Peter.

"I got plenty to say. I know your little game. I got spats, too. Trying to jump over the moon?"

"I was not aware you wanted P.P.P.," averred Sir Peter.

"You knew that without reorganization and a lot of fresh capital? It was a hell of a place to go to when I found these beauties

Things We Value

Are Those Which Have Cost Many Sacrifices To Attain

It seems to be a favorite form of advertising to urge that a certain article can be paid for without some penury.

How often have we read that a set of books can be purchased for the price of two good clowns a day; that a bicycle can be paid for in the saving of car tickets.

The idea is appeal to the economic mind of the average man more or less in his make-up.

And what articles are prized more than those for which it is necessary to make some sacrifice?

The young man who saves his first hundred dollars from his earnings will have more to live on than his parents ever had.

When adventurers appear to that inhumanity, they are on legitimate and safe ground. The things we value most highly in life are the ones that have cost something to attain.—Quoich Mercury.

Fought Chinese Bandits

Missionary Found Athletic Training
Stood Him In Good Stead

stirring tale of battles with Chinaman bandits were related by Rev. Father McDonald, who was on furlough after eight years as a missionary in Lichia, Chekiang province. Father McDonald is the son of a graduate of a local school and a graduate of St. Francis Xavier, where he played football and boxed.

Father McDonald's athletic experience came in handy at his mission post. He said that the father of a man he met in China had been another old man for $200 and she was to become the wife of the son of the purchaser, but when she grew up she didn't want to marry the man. Since she had been a virgin, Father McDonald advised her not to go through with the bargain that started the trouble.

Brigadiers turned up at the home of the man, who was a Chinaman, and the missionary was staying at the time, and Father McDonald had an idea they were after himself. "What's that?" he asked.

The missionary led other men of the household in a hand-to-hand struggle with the invaders and after the fracas was over the bandits fled to the hills, carrying their wounded.

Germ Warfare

Says Noxious Germs Will Not Be Used In Future Wars

Noxious germs will not be scattered from the skies in future wars, according to Wing-Commander E. J. Hodson, Imperial War Minister. Biological warfare is impossible, he told a meeting of sanitary inspectors in London. It was not feasible to drop "bugs" from the air.

"They do not take very kindly to being compressed and thrown about," said Commander Hodson. "It would be necessary to introduce the moon into our system in short of capturing each of the worlds with a small knife, it could not be done."

WEST TAKES ON JOB OF SUPPLYING ITS OWN PETROLEUM.

How the prairie west has taken over the job of supplying its own petroleum needs is one of the most remarkable stories in modern development, and was told recently at a session of the Tariff Board.

F. G. Scott, Chief Auditor of the Alberta Board of Public Utilities Commissioners, said that until last year the west was almost wholly dependent upon Montana for its supplies of crude oil. In 1936 nearly 350,000 barrels of oil were imported into the prairie from Montana.

Turner Valley came in as an oil field and prairie refiners disseminated Montana products to such an extent that by April, 1937, the prairie was taking more than 5,000 barrels of Montana purchases. In 1938 they had been taking more than half of it. Today practically the only Montanas left which are still being shipped to the prairie are from Canada oil in re-refined products.

Readjustment to meet this sudden transformation was no small task. It called for construction of pipe lines, refineries in every freight yard, expansion of distribution and other activities. Producers in Turner Valley benefited by the enlarged market. Consumers over most of the prairie received a 50 per cent reduction in price for light petroleum products.

On this year's consumption of gasoline, distillate, and other petroleum fuels, they will save at least $5,000,000.

"MEN AT WORK!"

The most cheerful sign on the road

"MEN AT WORK" is an encouraging, cheerful sign upon the highway.

It is the happiest sign on the business highway too.

Business enterprise, making wise use of banking service, is the mainspring of employment.

The contractor responsible for "Men at Work" signs gets the job of building that stretch of highway by being the lowest responsible tenderer.

Not always do we have the ready money to buy the materials, pay wages and build it out of our resources. He goes to the bank and, having assets as a good reputation, he negotiates such advances as he may need.

He orders materials, sets men to work. As a result, his contractors' certificates enable him to collect from those with whom he contracted, and the work goes on.

The highway finished, the bank is repaid. Such repayments enable the bank to supply credit to other responsible borrowers.

A manufacturer gets a large order with an early date for delivery. While only a hundred men in his factory cannot turn out the articles within the time required, with more men he can do it—and he lacks sufficient cash.

Operating his factory, as a going concern, with a profitable order and having a reputation for quality, he asks the bank to lend him what he needs to pay wages.

The bank makes him a loan. They get more men. They get more orders. The goods are delivered and paid for. The manufacturer repays the bank with the agreed interest.

He has his profit and can spend some money developing his business to keep his men employed.

How does a bank make these advances—where the money come from?

Banks, through branches throughout Canada, mobilize the surplus funds of millions of depositors, large and small, and, based upon them, make credit available throughout the country. This may be surprising.

Millions of little sums represent the total production and lifetime savings of Canadians—your fellow citizens.

Such savings deposits is the bank's first care.

Deposits of $1,000 or less—most of them much less—are owned by 3,770,000 out of Canada's 10,600,000 population. The total of all bank savings deposits in Canada is nearly $1,584,000,000; the average savings deposit in a bank is only $412.

Wisely safeguarded by Canada's chartered banks these deposits furnish credit that keeps "men at work" when used by Canadian business and industry—producing new realizable

The funds of depositors are their own—not a reserve from which everybody may draw at will for any and every financial experiment.
